Redaksioneel/Editorial

Those of you who have read Alan Paton's "Cry, The Beloved Country", a story of comfort in desolation, may have a deeper understanding of nurturing compassion and forgiveness within the context of South Africa's volatile past. The book epitomizes the ability of the human spirit to overcome differences in culture, religion and political ideals. This ultimately ensures peace within oneself.

Nature too is forgiving and exhibits, within limits, resilience to what I like to call "human induced eco - drivers". Simply, these are intended human actions and their resulting un-intended ecological consequences. However, due to unabated pressure on natural resources and the magnitude of the associated pollution, the degree to which the natural environment can "bounce back" is fast diminishing. I therefore add to Paton's message by saying that by venturing beyond what is perceived as important within our present realm of thinking and time, we will realize that environmental education and respect for nature should be our primary driver to ensure a sustainable Earth and further develop peace within ourselves.

Vriende, al wat ek probeer se is: Benut en bewaar ... dis goed vir die natuur en dis goed vir jou siel! Gepraat van benutting, NKJV en De Beers het weereens twee puik voorlêjagte aangebied. Die "Sheriff" en sy "Deputy" was oudergewoonte kliphard en het selfs die Jag Meester beboet vir onaantwoordbare gedrag! Die lede het 199 bokke geoes wat bydra tot die bestuurs strategie op Benfontein. Dankie aan De Beers vir die geleentheid en vir die onwrikbare ondersteuning.

Opleiding van ons jeug is vir NKJV 'n prioriteit en hul ywerige deelname aan die jaarlikse Pikkiedag, Penkopkamp en Winterskool is bewys genoeg dat daar 'n behoefte is. Lees gerus Theo Botoulas se storie oor die impak wat sulke opleiding op sy seun se lewe gehad het. Dit is wonderlik om te weet dat die opleiding wat ons aanbied so gewaardeur word en 'n verskil kan maak. Dankie hiervoor Theo.

Thanks also to Neville Fritz, Jozua Haarhoff and Schalk van der Merwe for your contributions. May you inspire others to put pen to paper and contribute to our newsletter. To the advertisers, Wilma at the office and Hayley at Swiftprint, your continued support is much appreciated.

Juniors Excel

It is said that any journey starts with a single step, or any achievement with the creation of an opportunity or the opening of a door. On the 10th March 2012, the Northern Cape Hunters' Association held its Annual "Pikkie Day", a day at which members of the Association introduce young children to rifle and shotgun shooting in an enjoyable manner and in a controlled and safe environment. Nicholas Botoulas (then 12) and his brother Stephen (then 8) attended the event on Rust en Vrede farm belonging to Michael Vigne.

Nicholas is a junior member of the NCHA.

That day was the first time that either Nicholas or Stephen had the opportunity of shooting a shotgun at a clay target travelling through the air. Nicholas (together with other children) was instructed by Douw Jacobs of the NCHA using a side-by-side .410 shotgun, and managed to hit several of the clay targets. Thanks to the efforts of the NCHA and Douw Jacobs, the sport of shooting had effectively been introduced to a young member and had created the foundation of a responsible and competent shottist.

Post the "Pikkie Day" Nicholas asked his father, also a member of the NCHA

and then an occasional Member of the De Beers Gun Club (DBGC), to take him out to the shotgun ranges at the DBGC to try a round of Trap (his father has subsequently acquired dedicated hunter and sportshooter status). The next step in Nicholas' shotgun journey had begun.

At the De Beers Gun Club, members including Ian Conroy, Rob Klemp and Alan Warren coached him and helped him understand the basic concepts and skills required in Clay Target shooting. Then it was off to the ranges to practice, practice and practice some more. Since 2012 Nicholas also attended the Magogong Provincial Wingshoots where, under the tutorship of André de Villiers, he learned hunting etiquette and safety and the proper use of a shotgun in the field, so growing his competence as a shotgun sportsman and building on the foundation laid at the Pikkie Day.

In September 2013 Nicholas entered his first official Clay Target Shooting Association of South Africa (CTSASA) competition, the Northern Cape Standard Open Championships where shooting competitive scores, he won Bronze Medals in the Junior (under 21 category) for ATA and DTL Trap. In 2014 and 2015 he entered several additional CTSASA Championships, shooting at Kimberley, Johannesburg, Centurion, Bloemfontein and Cape Town and winning several Junior Gold Medals along the way. On his journey through the world of competitive Clay Target Shooting, Nicholas has represented the South African 4 man Junior Team in the Mackintosh Trophy in 2014 and 2015 (an annual DTL Trap Competition between countries of the Commonwealth) and in June 2015 was awarded Junior Merit Colours by the CTSASA for consistently shooting qualifying scores at the South African Grand which was held at the beginning of May 2015.

Nicholas was joined on his shotgun journey in 2014 by Darren Thompson, the son of Alan Thompson who is a member of the NCHA and also the Chairman of De Beers Gun Club. At the South African Grand 2015, Nicholas won the Junior Gold Medal and Darren won the Junior Silver Medal at DTL Trap. Both Nicholas and Darren represented the CTSASA Junior South African Team at the South African Grand in 2015.

The CTSASA is (amongst other memberships) a member of the South African Sport Shooting Federation as well as a member of the Confederation of Hunters Associations of South Africa. The sport of Clay Target shooting offers many disciplines which vary from Sporting (a discipline which simulates hunting in the field) to the traditional disciplines such as ATA Trap, DTL Trap, NSSA Universal Trench, Olympic Trap, Olympic Double Trap, NSSA Skeet and Olympic Skeet. The CTSASA regulates the sport and is authorised to award National Protea Colours to those shooters who have shot qualifying scores. Details of the rules of the different shotgun “disciplines” are available and qualifying criteria for National Protea Colours for various international shotgun shooting competitions can be found on the CTSASA website, www.ctsasa.co.za.

The sport of Clay Target shooting caters for all. There are categories for Colts (under 15), Juniors (under 21), Ladies, Seniors and Veterans.

Nicholas and Darren, together with the members of the DBGC and NCHA, continue with their journey through the world of competitive shotgun shooting.

Nicholas and Darren invite all junior shooters (and others) in the Northern Cape, to join them on that journey and to discover the rewarding sport of shotgun shooting.

RED DUNE (K27103) 13/2016

A Day In The Life Of A Field Guide

This story takes place in a “Big 5” game reserve situated to the west of the Kruger National Park close to the town of Hoedspruit.

The croaking call of the Crested Francolin interrupts the silence of the night to announce the breaking of dawn, followed by the call of the Cape Turtle Dove which translates to “work harder, work harder” in the morning and “drink lager, drink lager”, in the afternoon.

While the Lowveld sun is rising like an orange balloon in the east, the smell of freshly brewed coffee fills the lounge area of the lodge.

All the guests having had their coffee, I commenced the safety brief for the morning’s hike: no talking, walk in single file behind my back-up and me, and if we encounter a charge from any dangerous game, do not run! Obey all commands given by me without hesitation!

We were heading south towards “Crocodile dam”, about 2km south of Buffalo Camp which is a luxury tented camp situated on the banks of a seasonal river and surrounded by beautiful Tamboti and Knob- thorn trees.

As we approached Crocodile dam, there was no sign of wildlife, so we proceeded to move along the inflow of the dam. After a short while we heard the soft contact calls of lion coming from the east. It can only be the Caroline pride as their territory is the area south of Buffalo camp. The pride consists of two adult females, three sub adults and the pride male.

With the wind in our favour I reminded my company of the safety procedures and got their go-ahead to approach the lion on foot.

One could feel the breeze blowing into our faces as we headed east towards the calls. After 150 metres we found ourselves staring at a thick wall of reeds and then all of a sudden there was a loud burst of lion grunts and a buffalo snorting from behind the reeds . As quickly as possible, I managed to get everybody safely behind a huge termite mound under a Weeping –Boer Bean tree.

We were watching the reeds moving when suddenly a dagga boy (a lone buffalo bull) broke cover dragging the three attacking sub adult lions. In the blink of an eye the bull shook one lion off his back and turned to chase the other two. Without warning the wind changed direction, sending our scent directly towards him. He characteristically turned in our direction with his nose held high, scenting the air, to pin point our position. Luckily he could not see us, so I gave Bennet, my back-up, instructions to take the guests out and to make use of a dense cluster of Red Bushwillows as cover. With my .458 Cz loaded I waited until the last guest was on his way out before I followed them.

We back tracked for about 80m with the dagga boy following us only by scent before he turned his attention back to the three sub adult lions. Boy did those 80 meters feel like an eternity!

We made our way back towards Crocodile dam, where a debriefing was given on what we had just witnessed.

One always gets the most interesting questions from our international guests, for example: “The bullets for the rifle, are they used to put the animal to sleep if they charge us?”. Answer: “Yes, permanently!”

So maak ons waar die riviere ontmoet!

DJ Jacobs en Andries Heyneke met Eddie du Toit wat die pryse oorhandig het van GWK.

Al die boere stroop en elkeen wat enigsins van landbou afhanklik is, is op 'n drafstap. Daarom, al het ons 103 lede, bly dit 'n reuse uitdaging om in hierdie besige dae iets aan te bied.

Dit bly egter vir ons Vereniging belangrik om toe te sien dat ons lede hulle toegewyde status kan behou deur aan ten minste drie aksies deel te neem – en daarom bied ons verskeie aan.

Op Saterdag 13 Junie het ons 'n gongsiet aangebied. Hierdie dag is deur 35 persone bygewoon en 29 skutse het deelgeneem. Die teikens is op afstande van tussen 100m en 500m geplaas vanaf die skut en hiermee is 'n uitdaging aan elke individuele skut gebied. Danksy GWK Douglas se wapenafdeling het die uitblinkers vir hulself heerlike pryse losgeskiet.

Die volgende skiet gaan die vorm van 'n silhoeëtte skiet aanneem. Oud en jonk sal hierdie kompetisie ewe veel geniet, want hierdie kompetisie word met die .22 randslag kaliber gedoen. Daar sal weereens wonderlike pryse wees.

Gedurende die jaar word die CHASA-bekwaamheidstoets en -eksamen aangebied, wat onontbeerlik is om toegewyde jagterstatus te verkry.

Vir die kannetjies beplan ons 'n kamp saam met die Pa's. Hier gaan elke jong jagter die kans kry om te leer uit die ouer jagters se ervarings.

Een man kan nie die reëlings alleen baas raak nie, daarom is Vaal-Oranje manne bereid om op te offer ter wille van die Vereniging. Ons strewende is ook om binnekort ons eie goedgekeurde skietbaan te hê tot voordeel van al ons lede.

Vaal-Oranje wil graag elkeen bedank vir sy aandeel om 'n blink toekoms te verseker - waar idees en toewyding hande vat, sukses in groot kaliber vorentoe skiet.

Vaal-Oranje groete.

Interesting facts about Archery

- Archery, the sport of shooting with bow and arrow, was an important military and hunting skill before the introduction of gunpowder. England's Charles II fostered archery as a sport and in 1673 established the world's oldest continuous archery tournament known as the Ancient Scorton Arrow Contest. Clubs mushroomed throughout Europe from the late 17th century. Later an interest in the United States led to the formation of the National Archery Association in 1879. Although field archery (using bows without sights), flight shooting (for distance) and crossbow are competitive sports, the primary international contests involve target shooting, the object of which is to score points with a specified number of arrows aimed at the target centre—a "pinhole" dot surrounded by nine concentric coloured circles. The value of hits decreases from the pinhole to the outermost circle. Archery became an official Olympic event in 1972 before which it was only an occasional event at the Games. The Fédération Internationale de Tir à l'Arc (FITA; est. 1930) governs international competition. In recent decades the bow and arrow has also regained popularity as a hunting weapon.
- In the modern Olympics, recurve bows might look hi-tech and chic but their design was inspired by archery design that dated back to more than three- thousand five- hundred years ago.
- “Toxophilus”, the first book on the archery sport was written by Roger Ascham in 1545. He coined the term from two words in Greek meaning “lover of bow”. Toxophily is the term used to denote the science of archery.
- In 2340BC the Babylonians first used arrows as well as bows for warfare.
- In the 1900 Olympic Games, the archers used live pigeons as their targets.
- Archery is the national sport of the beautiful country of Bhutan.
- Originally, archery was the sole sport at the Olympics that women could participate in. From 1912 onwards this changed and women were able to participate in disciplines like swimming and athletics.
- At the age of sixty three, a woman archer namely Eliza Pollock won a gold medal and then two bronze medals in the archery sports in 1904 Olympic sports.
- A conventional form of archery namely Kyudo is considered to be an exclusive art form in Japan.
